FREEPORT INQUEST IS RESUMED TODAY

UNOPENED BOX OF CARTRIDGES IS FOUND IN DR CARMAN'S HOME

SHOT FIRED AT HIS DOUBLE

Man Who Resembles Physician Is Attacked—Negro Servant Girl Testifies Today

By Associated Press

Freeport, N Y July 6—The inquest into the death of Mrs Louise Bailey wife of a New York manufacturer who was shot [illegible] Tuesday night while in conversation with Dr Edwin Carman prominent Freeport physician in his office was resumed here today

Assistant District Attorney Weeks exhibited an unopened box of 38 calibre revolver cartridges which he said he had found in the attic of the Carman home Dr Carman told him said Weeks that he did not know how the cartridges came there A 38 calibre bullet killed Mrs Bailey

W J Haff Jr of Lynnbrook near here who strongly resembles Dr Carman and who drives an automobile of the same type reported to the Freeport police that early this morning while driving his machine not far from where Dr Carman was fired upon last night that a man standing beside the road fired one shot at him

Negro Maid is Witness

At the inquest today the first witness called was Celia Coleman a negro maid in the Carman home She said Mrs Carman complained of having a headache and said that she was going upstairs The witness saw her leave the dining room and later heard footsteps which she believed were those of Mrs Carman on the stairs She admitted having talked with George Levy Mrs Carman's attorney the morning after the murder She insisted that no one else was present at the conference

Do you know what perjury means" asked the district attorney The witness answered that she did The attorney then asked if she had not told him previously that Mrs Carman was present The witness said she did not remember

Attack on Dr Carman

Last night Dr Carman was shot three times as he drove in his automobile through the town of Baldwin near here None of the bullets struck him The doctor was on his way home from Rockville Center where he had been to attend a patient

Dr Carman told the police the story of the attack on him He had been out making professional calls and passed through Rockville Center on his way home Here he met Carl Gaden an actor and invited him to ride home with him

Gaden accepted my invitation said Dr Carman and we went into the car We stopped in a store and as we again got into the car I noticed a man on a bicycle near the curb We drove off without paying particular attention to the man

When about a mile and a half out of town I heard a report and thought one of my tires had exploded My friend got out on one side of the machine and I got out on the other As soon as I put my foot on the ground I heard another shot and when I looked around I saw the man I had seen when we came out of the store standing beside his bicycle with a revolver in his hand Gaden shouted My God Carman he's trying to kill you

We both jumped into the car there was another report and a bullet went singing by my head Gaden and I dented far over in our seats to be out of range of the bullets and I opened the throttle as far as it would go

TEACHERS ARE IN ANNUAL SESSION AT ST. PAUL

National Educational Association Begins Its Convention—Wilson Sends Telegrams

By Associated Press

St Paul Minn July 6—Given a cultivated trained teacher of sound mind and body who goes to work at peace with God and man the school will be the best place in the world for the growth of the child in practical religiousness and American citizenship This assertion was made today by Joseph Swain president of Swarthmore College and president of the National Educational Association at the first general session of the association's annual convention here His session was devoted principally to a discussion of the teachers relation to American citizenship A telegram from President Wilson expressing regret that public duties made it impossible for him to attend the meeting was read at the general session The message said in part

Thoughtful people all over the country follow the deliberations of the National Educational Association with great interest The problem of education are really problems affecting national development and national ideas I think that no one long associated with the profession of teaching can have failed to catch the inspiration of it or to see how great a power may be exercised through the class room in directing the thinking and the ambition of the generations coming on or can have failed to realize that nothing less than a conservation of the national life is necessary for a teacher for the great mass of preparation and adaptation for the future that education attempts

HEAVY GRAIN SHIPMENTS KEEPING RAILROADS BUSY

Wet Weather Diminishes Wagon Receipts Giving Lines a Chance To Catch Up

The jump of a cent and an eighth in the price of wheat in Chicago at the close of the market today came too late to affect the price here today which remained at seventy two cents but it is expected that the local price will be raised a cent a bushel tomorrow

The rains last week and muddy roads checked the flow of grain to the shipping points and receipts fell off the latter part of the week This has given the railroads time to get caught up in a measure in the movement of the grain but even with this despite the yards here today were filled with grain cars Three switching crews are working almost day and night in the local yards If fair weather continues the latter part of the week will see the wheat movement at its height and the railroads will be hard put to it to avoid a blockade here

So far the railroads have been able to furnish all the cars needed without much difficulty but the supply is now beginning to get short and the cars are not being unloaded and sent back from Galveston as fast as they are sent out

The movement of the Kansas crop will begin this week and this will require many thousands of cars

"Mollie had had more disappointment than she ever imagined possible in that quiet, out-of-the-way place.

"I do wish Jack wouldn't write me letters on a typewriter; it always seems like a business letter. There is sentiment in this kind of a letter. It's been so long since I have seen his writing, I would never recognize it, I know."

"You ought to be thankful to get any kind of a letter from him. I should think your sweetheart would give you no peace," interrupted Lil, the milliner.

Mollie decided to have one lark and then go home. After much [illegible] as to time and place, she agreed to meet the unknown B. L. K. at the Allendale cafe at 11. She decided to go into the city on the interurban, take lunch with him and then go back and tell Lil what a jolly time she had had.

"Red Wing" Grape Juice Bottle is a New Idea

The old style of cork in grape juice bottles was a nuisance. It frequently meant a soiled suit, tie or collar, sometimes a broken bottle or a cut hand, frequently the cork went into the bottle. No matter how good the grape juice was it was hard to get at it.

In the new "RED WING" brand you can take the cork off with your finger. You will not need a cork puller. You will not cut yourself. You will not spill any of the juice.

It's a very unique, air-tight cork. It won't come off of itself but you can easily take it off.

I have it in three size bottles, 25c, 50c and 90c.

HIS "PULL" WAS A BLUFF

By K. M. BARRETT.

Nobody knew why Hawkins, the factory clerk, was a permanency with the Copperplate & Tin company, but it was vaguely surmised that he had some sort of a "pull" there. Hawkins was an ambitious man; it was said that he had been the inventor of the mosquitoless system, and that old Green, the millionaire bachelor who owned the factory, had spent his life abroad, had jockeyed him out of it and given him a big job at a hundred a month in partial amends. But Green had not been in the factory for years. The world had automatically continued under the charge of the superintendent, who operated them, and Green was satisfied to draw his hundred thousand annual profits and leave the operations alone.

The only change made within the past seven years had been the arrival of the new superintendent, Blair, and the vacancy which he filled had been caused by the death of his predecessor.

Times were comparatively hard, and, as Hawkins was certainly valuable to the firm, Blair spoke to Atkins, his assistant.

"Say, what sort of a pull has that old duffer?" he asked. "What's this I hear about his being a friend of Mr. Green? I have had no instructions about him."

"Why—he's a sort of fixture," said Atkins. "A friend of the old man's once, I believe. Everybody knows that he's too old to be fired."

"Well, I'm going to call that bluff," said Blair. "Out he goes at the end of the month. Besides, even if the bluff's true, I guess Mr. Green has forgotten him, and by the last reports he isn't well enough to care. Poor old chap, they say he can't live more than a few months."

This referred to Green, not to Hawkins. Hawkins was fifty, and hale and hearty, one of those lean men who wither up rather than die, and then not till they are advanced in years. Nobody ever spoke to Hawkins, because his "grouch" was a permanent one. At least, he did have one friend—little Miss Smith, in the typewriting department. Yet by a mutual arrangement they never addressed each other in office hours. Nobody knew that for nearly ten years Hawkins had taken Miss Smith for a walk in the park every Sunday afternoon, supping with her at a cheap restaurant afterward, and bidding her good-by at the door of her flat. Miss Smith was thirty-seven and prim. She would have died with shame had anybody known that she had a "gentleman friend."

Hawkins had never said a word to Miss Smith about the terms of his engagement. That was part of the contract between himself and Green.

"No boy," said the genial old scoundrel, when Hawkins was thirty-two and was planning to fight Green for the patent rights, "no boy, don't be a down fool. Come in with me. It'll mean a hundred a month to you for life, and—and I'll raise ye."

And Hawkins, desperately poor, was forced to yield.

If only Hawkins were head of the factory! He would show Blair how it should be run. He knew every product in every department; he had, indeed, made a study of it with a view to some day starting a rival concern with his own money. But the years rolled by, other inventions had killed the wind gun of his youth, and—Hawkins was fifty.

"I'd show them a thing or two," he told Miss Smith, only the previous Sunday. "I wouldn't spend my life abroad with this fine property running down."

"What would you do, Mr. Hawkins?" inquired Miss Smith, and was deeply interested in Hawkins' answer.

"First thing I'd fire Blair and Atkins," observed Hawkins. "And then I'd—I'd—"

Suddenly, for the emotion that he was feeling at Miss Smith's eyes which that mild lady had never noticed—at least from him, for he loved her—with a blank face he left her doubting. And Hawkins, in the grouch department, had spoken to her about it for the first time.

Suddenly, for the emotion that he was feeling at Miss Smith's eyes which that mild lady had never noticed—at least from him, for he loved her—with a blank face he left her doubting. And Hawkins, in the grouch department, had spoken to her about it for the first time.

When he got inside the factory after

"Mr. Hawkins," called the boy contemptuously.

Hawkins went over to Blair's desk.

"Mr. Hawkins," said Blair, "I may as well come to the point without any preliminaries. You have probably heard that Mr. Green has died in Paris. We do not know who the heir will be, but meanwhile it is up to us to curtail a lot of unnecessary expenditure, chiefly in the matter of help, in which Mr. Green involved the firm. Times are bad, and the outside members of the force must go. You can get your salary for the month at the cashier's desk."

Hawkins stood smiling at Blair. The hour of his triumph had come.

"I see nothing to laugh at, Mr. Hawkins," said the superintendent angrily. "Thought you had some sort of pull here perhaps, didn't you?"

"I did and I do," said Hawkins, pulling a letter out of his pocket. "Read that."

Blair snatched up the letter and began reading impatiently. As he read, however, the expression on his face changed, first to alarm and then to terror.

"My dear Hawkins," he read, "I am writing this on my sick bed, and it is the last letter that I expect to write in this life. Eighteen years ago I stole your copperplate process from you. I had no claim whatever, but you had asked me to capitalize your invention, and I, seeing its commercial value, promptly patented it—which you had neglected to do in the proper manner. You threatened a lawsuit. I offered you a life position at one hundred dollars a month as a compromise. I would have given you five hundred and signed a compact, but when you accepted the offer as it was made I took you at your word.

"Now, that I am dying, I wish to ask your forgiveness, and, to make the restitution complete, let me say that I am making you my sole heir in the matter of the company, my will having been drawn to that effect, according to the copy which I am now sending you."

"Well, Mr. Blair, have you anything to add to your statement?" inquired old Hawkins blandly.

"Well, Mr. Hawkins," Blair began, looking to his solicitor for support, "of course, this alters the situation considerably. It is rather for you to say what you are going to do with the company."

"And what say?" said Atkins [illegible]

Life's Seesaw.

On ye find a heart that's weary,
And thy needs a brother's hand,
Dinna thow turn from it, dearie;
Thou mayst help they fellowman.
Thou, too, hast a hidden heartache,
Sacred from all mortal ken,
And because of thine own grief's sake
Thou mayst feel for ither men.

In this world o' seesaw, dearie,
Grief goes up and joy comes down,
Brows that catch the sunshine cheerie
Brows that catch the sunshine cheerie
May tomorrow wear a' frown.
Heart December, dull and dreary,
Follows on the heels of May.
Give thy trust unstinted, dearie,
Thou mayst need a friend some day.

JACK WAS SO TAME

By ELIZABETH OGILVIE.

Here's the very thing I am looking for, Lil 'Lonely gentleman living in the city forty years old, no bad habits dark hair and eyes good business man wants to correspond with lady blonde preferred must be pretty object friendship and affection will exchange photographs Address B L K, Tribune Office I am going to answer this Lil, I am going to be the pretty blonde lady

You will never do it, Mollie, it would be scandalous You, a married woman, too

I don't care if I am, I can't stay cooped up here all summer without having a little fun I have been here a whole month now, and haven't had one adventure '

'Yes, Mollie, but this is too dangerous to be funny If Jack ever hears of it, he will be angry enough to divorce you, and I wouldn't blame him if he did. You know he has a temper.'

'Pooh' Jack is a lamb; I am not a bit afraid of Jack, he is so tame; just like a canary bird fed on lump sugar I know he would be shocked and such a thing would never enter his dear old head, but I am going to do it anyway '

Lil sighed. 'Well Mollie, remember I do not approve of this thing at all Whose picture will you send? Not your own, of course"

'I can get one somewhere I want one of a beautiful young girl That one in your room, the one Amy Brown gave you will do, can I have it?"

'Yes, I suppose, but I do wish you would give up this crazy scheme, Mollie"

Sober, staid quiet Jack Bates, finding it impossible to leave his business in the city had sent his young and pretty wife out to her sister, who lived alone in a quiet little village.

Mollie answered the advertisement of the unknown B L K and anxiously awaited results, which came in a few days in the shape of an answer.

The correspondence progressed rapidly He praised her eyes, hinted that life would be more worth living with her by his side, and urged her to meet him in the city soon

Mollie Bates during of spirit loving adventure more than anything else in the world promised to meet him sometime but did not name a date

His letters were warm, tender, loving He had advanced so far as to call her pet names

Mollie had had more amusement than she ever imagined possible in that quiet, out-of the way place

I do wish Jack wouldn't write me letters on a typewriter it always seems like a business letter There's no sentiment in this kind of a letter, It's been so long since I have seen his writing I would never recognize it, I know '

'You ought to be thankful to get any kind of a letter from him. I should think your conscience would give you no peace, answered Lil, the righteous

Mollie decided to have one lark and then go home After much thinking as to time and place, she agreed to meet the unknown B L K at the Allendayle cafe at 11 She decided to go into the city on the interurban take lunch with him and then go back and tell Lil what a jolly time she had had

Her car was a few minutes late Will he be waiting, she wondered Really, this is equal to a schoolgirl romance, and dear old Jack would be shocked at me or any other woman doing such a dreadful thing ' She hastened to the trysting place All the way to the city she had been trying to picture what he would look like and what he would say He was to wear a white carnation on the right lapel of his coat and she had agreed to wear a pink one on her left shoulder How ridiculous it all seemed, and what an adventure it was too

She walked with her head up and a firm step only a moment now and she would reach the cafe door She adjusted her veil put one hand back to the meeting place of waist and skirt, gave a hitch here, a pull there, drew a deep breath opened the door and walked into the room.

"Why, hello Mollie, what has brought you to the city today" anxiously asked Jack, looking steadily at the pink carnation on her shoulder

"I came—I came to see you, Jack," stammered Mollie, blushing a rosy red

She was only sure of one thing; safely pinned to the right lapel of Jack's coat—dear dignified, sedate, charming Jack—was a white carnation

SAVES DAUGHTER

Advice of Mother no Doubt Prevents Daughter's Untimely End.

Ready, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," writes Mrs. Laura Bratcher, of this place, "and was down in bed for three months.

I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles.

Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me,

At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing.

I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health. "

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, get a bottle of Cardui today Delay is dangerous We know it will help you, for it has helped so many thousands of other weak women in the past 50 years.

MEASURING WORTH OF ONE'S ACTIVITIES

THIS IS SUBJECT OF SERMON AT FIRST M E CHURCH SUNDAY

WILL BE JUDGED BY RESULTS

"Is It Wotrh While" Advocated As Best Test of One's Plans and Labors

The church that serves best will survive longest said Rev J C Smith pastor of the First M E church last night in concluding a sermon on Things Worth While He said that the results of one's use whether in business social or religious activity, were a safe test of its worth His text was from Colossians 3 23 Whatsoever ye do work heartily as unto the Lord and not unto man He said

In considering this subject no attempt will be made to catalog every thing in life's varied experiences that might be considered worth while This would be an impossible task because of its giant proportions and because no man has the wisdom nor the range of experience to attempt such a task Doubtless every serious minded person has some time in his life wished that Infinite Wisdom had made a catalog of all possible phases of conduct and set over against the things worth while those that are injurious and thus enable us to be positive in all our judgments But a moment's reflection will convince us that such a scheme would be weakening to personality and would soon reduce man to the plane of the insect with little powers of descrimination above instinct There is a better way for us than that and our highest good is attained by our exercising ourselves in the matters of choice But in order that we may choose properly it is necessary that we have some fixed standards of judgment We must have decided upon some determining principles In the commercial world we have material standards according to which we measure everything The yard stick is adequate for measuring calico and the bushel for grain and the pound for other articles There is no commercial measuring apart from these and similar terms So in life there are standards of measurements which we must apply to every phase of conduct It is to be assumed that we desire to amount to something There is no need to talk to the person who has no ambition to amount to something but for the individual who desires to mature the possibilities within him there is always hope For such an individual therefore there must be fixed certain standards of measurement to which he will subject all his conduct

Among other possible standards this certainly must be applied Is it worth while" We may call it the worth while standard This implies several things 1 What is my motive in undertaking this thing 2 What results may I reasonably expect from my effort? 3 Will the result justify the effort This might also be called the business test A sane business man will ask Why am I doing this' What will I get out of it Will my profits pay me for the effort' And unless he can balance the results over against the work he will not attempt the enterprise What a difference it would make in life if all well meaning people would apply the common sense principle to all conduct

The weakness of modern life is this lack of thoughtfulness If we should challenge the average person regarding daily conduct and demand to know the motive for his acts very few would be able to give definite motive We follow in the rut and are creatures of circumstance [illegible] and are not conscious of any definite expectation from our effort We do things as others have done them before and take what comes Such ought not to be the case with mature persons We should have a well defined motive looking to a certain end in our social life service Let me illustrate It seems obvious that our Creator designed us to gather certain development from association with others It is plain that we need this contact in order to develop certain qualities of character Observing this principle however many jump to the conclusion that social line of whatever sort is necessarily beneficial We must submit social life to our worth while test Is this particular phase of my social life worth while What may I reasonably expect to derive from it Will what I get out of it justify the effort'

Multitudes of man and women throughout our land are exhausting every energy in their energy in social life and at this expenditure of time and energy were undoubtedly good we would expect great development of character in these organizations But what is the result There is a perfunctory round of stereotyped entertaining and when the Holy and Eternal business emphasized by Christ they are as empty as sounding brass and tinkling cymbals Why is wrong' The method of social life is not wrong but these people are losing the principle and were in a wasting exhaustion What is life is not worth while [illegible] intellectual and spiritual stimulus in leaves no effect except upon diseased bodies that finally break under the strain There is plenty to do that is worth while but the drift of modern so called higher social life is not in that direction Sometimes one feels that is worth while to relaxation but too much relaxation is excess What ever is our social life ministers to the development of the self within and is free from evil is worth while We need to rub off too much pride by contact with others That which improves mind body or soul is worth while provided it does not intrude upon that which would do still more for us Of the possible good we must choose the best

The business man can not measure his returns in dollars only He has a return of character and in the worth while test must take that into consideration also A certain method of money getting may enable him to become wealthy but what is that method doing for the man in the meantime? In the end the man has deteriorated we must pronounce his business a failure no matter what wealth he may have accumulated So in all our activities we must inquire whether the results to be obtained will justify the effort and the results will need to be measured in all their breadth in order to decide

The activities of religious organizations must be measured by this same rule also What is the motive for our religious activities? It must be conceded that sometimes our religious motives are not high Sometimes one denomination works strenuously with little more in view than to build up a larger congregation than a neighboring church Sometimes a pastor is more concerned with the building up of his reputation than he is with building up his church A pastor and a church may well afford to work earnestly if their motive is to be helpful to others but if it is a selfish motive the church can hardly prosper under it Innocent rivalries may arise but when they pass into jealousies our worth while test will eliminate them What results do we expect from our effort? Some people take too [illegible] this [illegible] and the church [illegible] their motive does [illegible] their activities toward the [illegible] and for which the church exists [illegible] a distinction between the [illegible] and spiritual [illegible] the church [illegible] the church work [illegible] not [illegible] in the [illegible] not [illegible] [illegible] the highest [illegible] [illegible] work [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] our [illegible] [illegible] as a church [illegible] in [illegible] where [illegible] may we [illegible] [illegible] from our efforts we put [illegible] Will the results be social and social only or will they [illegible] the higher and spiritual and [illegible] and [illegible] what results [illegible] we expect We need to be [illegible] this matter of [illegible] [illegible] good [illegible] honest and [illegible] and we may [illegible] will [illegible] what to [illegible] it worth while [illegible] what we [illegible] properly expect will [illegible] worth the effort It may [illegible] [illegible] that I should [illegible] methods so that I may have adequate result This certainly [illegible] principles Common sense harmonizes nicely with religion and we need to be [illegible] if we are doing something just as this can [illegible] rules that is the best way and [illegible] of best results We are calling for efficiency [illegible] individuals and [illegible] organizations The individual and the church that best serves will longest survive the passing

MINERS' FEDERATION OFFICIALS GO ON TRIAL

Houghton Mich July With more than a dozen attorneys on hand to represent state and defense the trial of Charles H Moyer president of the Western Federation of Miners, Guy Miller J C Townley and William Mills members of the national executive council together with thirty one other officials and members of the federation on charges of conspiracy was scheduled to start this afternoon before Judge O'Brien of Calumet in the Houghton county circuit court The trial is the direct outcome of the grand jury investigation of alleged violence by strikers in the recent labor war in the Michigan copper country

Under the Michigan law the offenses charged against the labor leaders constitute a misdemeanor not a felony Moyer and his associates are directly charged with conspiracy to prevent the operation of mines by violence or other means The trial here establishes a precedent inasmuch as charges of similar nature never before have been lodged against any labor organization of its officials

HIS LONG "PULL"

By H M EGBERT

Nobody knew why Hawkins the factory clerk was a permanency with the Copperplate & Tin company but it was vaguely surmised that he had some sort of a pull there Hawkins was an embittered man It was said that he had been the inventor of the copperplate process and that old Green the millionaire bachelor who owned the factory and spent his life abroad had jockeyed him out of it and given him a life job at a hundred a month in partial amends But Green had not been in the factory for years The works had automatically continued under the charge of the experienced men who operated them and Green was satisfied to draw his hundred thousand annual profits and leave the operations alone

The only change made within the past seven years had been the arrival of the new superintendent Blair and the vacancy which he filled had been caused by the death of his predecessor

Times were comparatively hard and old Hawkins was certainly valueless to the firm Blair spoke to Adkin his assistant

Say what sort of a pull has that old duffer? he asked What's this I hear about his being a friend of Mr Green? I have had no instructions about him

Why—he's a sort of fixture said Adkins A friend of the old man's once I believe Everybody knows that he's not to be fired

Well I'm going to call that bluff said Blair Out he goes at the end of the month Besides even if the bluff's true I guess Mr Green has forgotten him and by the last reports he isn't well enough to care Poor old chap they say he can't live more than a few months

This referred to Green not to Hawkins Hawkins was fifty and hale and hearty one of those lean men who wither up rather than die and then not till they are advanced in years Nobody ever spoke to Hawkins because his grouch was a permanent one At least he did have one friend—little Miss Smith in the bookkeeping department but by a

mutual arrangement they never addressed each other in office hours Nobody knew that for nearly ten years Hawkins had taken Miss Smith for a walk in the park every Sunday afternoon supping with her at a cheap restaurant afterward and bidding her good by at the door of her flat Miss Smith was thirty seven and prim She would have died with shame had anybody known that she had a gentleman friend

Hawkins had never said a word to Miss Smith about the terms of his engagement That was part of the contract between himself and Green

Me boy said the genial old scoundrel when Hawkins was thirty two and was planning to fight Green for the patent rights me boy don't be a damn fool Come in with me It'll mean a hundred a month to yez for life and—and I'll raise ye

If only Hawkins were head of the factory! He would show them how it should be run He knew every process in every department he had, indeed made a study of it with a view to some day starting a rival concern with his new patent But the years rolled by other inventions had taken the wind out of his sail, and—Hawkins was fifty

I'd show them a thing or two" he told Miss Smith only the preceding Sunday I wouldn't spend my life abroad with this fine property running down

What would you do Mr Hawkins inquired Miss Smith She was deeply interested in Hawkins schemes

First thing I'd fire Blair and Adkins answered Hawkins And then I'd I'd--

Suddenly he was conscious that he was looking at Miss Smith in a way which that lady had never experienced—at least from him for she turned away with a blush that left her scarlet. And Hawkins in the greatest embarrassment bade her good night at her door

When he got home the Sunday after he found a letter waiting for him which he read with amazement. Then he staggered up the stairs to his little bedroom in the cheap roominghouse, which he had occupied for years He spent that night in sleepless planning But in the morning he was as cool as ever

That morning there was a curious expectancy about the office Hawkins absorbed in his useless routine work, did not heed the remarks that passed until one of the factory men touched him on the arm

Well" snarled Hawkins, spinning round on his stool

You haven't heard the news, have you Mr Hawkins?"

What news? demanded Hawkins

Why, old man Green's died in Paris that's all except that we're all expecting to lose our jobs answered the man

Hawkins stared at him and then went on with his work

For the first time in years Miss Smith addressed him as he was passing through the business office on his way to lunch

"O Mr Hawkins isn't it terrible' she said Mr Green is dead and—I'm afraid I'm going to lose my position'

The poor little woman was all in a flutter It was well known that Blair wanted to reduce the superfluous staff he was a man without pity and the older members would be the first to go

Miss Smith'' called out an office boy 'Mr Blair wants to see you'

Little Miss Smith hurried into the superintendent's office and Hawkins waited beside her desk Everybody knew the meaning of the summons When she came back she was wiping her eyes

Good bye Mr Hawkins she said extending her hand You know what has happened I—I—

Wait a minute Miss Smith said Hawkins I want you to lunch with me at Fry's Will you?

There was something so urgent in his tone that Miss Smith forgot to be alarmed She glanced round nervously Nobody had overheard

All right she whispered and gathering up her things slipped out of the building Hawkins was waiting

Mr Hawkins called the boy contemptuously

Hawkins went over to Blair's desk

Mr Hawkins said Blair I may as well come to the point without any preliminaries You have probably heard that Mr Green has died in Paris We do not know who the heirs will be but meanwhile it is up to us to curtail a lot of unnecessary expenditure, chiefly in the matter of help in which Mr Green involved the firm Times are bad and the useless members of the force must go You can get your salary for the month at the cashier's desk

Hawkins stood smiling at Blair The hour of his triumph had come

I see nothing to laugh at Mr Hawkins said the superintendent angrily Thought you had some sort of pull here perhaps didn't you?"

I did and I do said Hawkins pulling a letter out of his pocket Read that

My dear Hawkins he read "I am writing this on my sick bed, and it is the last letter that I expect to write in this life Eighteen years ago I stole your copperplate process from you I had no claim whatever, but you had asked me to capitalize your invention and I seeing its commercial value promptly patented it—which you had neglected to do in the proper manner You threatened a lawsuit. I offered you a life position at one hundred dollars a month as a compromise I would have given you five hundred and signed a compact, but when you accepted the offer as it was made I took you at your word

Now that I am dying I wish to ask your forgiveness and to make the restitution complete let me say that I am making you my sole heir in the matter of the company my will having been drawn to that effect according to the copy which I am now sending you

'Well Mr Blair have you anything to add to your statement? inquired old Hawkins blandly

Well Mr Hawkins Blair began, looking to his assistant for support, of course this alters the circumstances considerably It is rather for you to say what you are going to do with the company'

'And with us, said Adkin bluntly

I tell you what I am going to do," said Hawkins quietly 'I am going to ask you fellows—I mean gentlemen—to continue to hold your posts on the following conditions A twenty per cent increase in salary for every member of this firm including yourselves down to the office boys That comes first. Second, there will be no discharges, now or in future without application to me, stating the reasons Third you will send my monthly check—of course, after the will is proved—to my Paris address

'You are going to live in Paris?" inquired Blair with a curious smile

Why not?" demanded Hawkins

Well you see of course that would simplify matters a good deal so far as we are concerned, but—

O it won't be permanent,' said Hawkins 'In fact I'm just going over for a month with—I mean—see here I'll write to you from Fry's"

Fry's restaurant' inquired Adkin of Blair arching his brows The old fellow has gone insane with happiness at his good luck"

But little Miss Smith knew better.

IRISH NATIONALIST FORCES ORGANIZING

VOLUNTEER ARMY IS STILL ON FAR FROM EFFICIENT PLANE

CLASS DISTINCTIONS VANISH

Enthusiasm and Interest Prevail But Little Has Actually Been Accomplished

By Associated Press

Dublin July 6—Estimates of the number of the Irish Nationalist Volunteers vary between 80 000 which is the Dublin Castle figure compiled by the police and a quarter of a million which is the estimate given in platform speeches Careful inquiry shows that there are 50 000 in Leinster which takes the lead about 45 000 in Ulster (increasing rapidly) 35 000 in Munster and 25 000 in Connaught

The difficulty of exact estimate arises from the fact that the movement is not organized from the centre Forces have sprung up spontaneously in every parish and so far are only loosely connected with the provisional central body There has been a complete wiping out of all class distinctions and the rank and file include every grade farmers laborers shopkeepers clerks doctors lawyers and country gentlemen There is a very strong leaven of time expired soldiers old Connaught Rangers Dublin Fusiliers and their experience is proving useful in the drill

Little Equipment or Money

The chief military commanders are Colonel Maurice Moore who commanded the Connaught Rangers in the Boer War and Captain White a son of the General White who defended Ladysmith Recent accessions are Sir Henry Gratten Bellew a grandson of the great Henry Grattan who had experience in the Fifth Dragon Guards and Captain Bellingham brother of the Marchioness of Bute who is at present an aide de camp to the Lord Lieutenant Military experience however slight is at a premium and a medical student with a little volunteer training is commanding as sergeant a grade which includes among the privates a university professor of law

The army has extremely little equipment and is no money But the material is excellent and the enthusiasm unbounded Mr Redmond's open issue is with the movements will remove the difficulty of getting money The men in charge of the movement so far are for the most part unknown and there has been much reluctance to provide funds till the public knew who would spend the money and for what

Redmond's Plan

The central body consists of twenty two men Of them fifteen are said to be Home Rulers in sympathy with Mr Redmond but the more active influential and effective spirits are members of the Sinn Fein party They have few supporters in the country and the great bulk of the volunteers are supporters of Redmond Mr Redmond offered his co operation to the Central body if he was allowed to nominate an equal number of men on it pending the election of the executive bodies of the executive Failing acceptance he will recommend each county to govern itself

This offer was rejected on a hastily summoned meeting of the executives who decided that each county should get a representative to sit with them This has produced strong protest from Cork County Kerry who says the meeting was not properly convened and asks for a full meeting when the members would accept Mr Redmond's offer Mr Redmond cannot allow a movement mainly composed of his supporters to be commanded by a self qualified body of which the most active members are opponents of his Once the Volunteer members can hold their convention the executive the matter will settle itself Meantime there may be friction which will be obviated to a great extent by making each county govern its own volunteers

Leaders of the Covenanters in Ulster refuse to consider the National Volunteer movement as something not to be taken seriously These Nationalist bands in the Ulster counties drill publically and are not connected with any central organization All the local leaders are entirely on their own initiative In some districts the volunteers are split into factions under opposing leaders who carry on a newspaper warfare

The Ulster leaders say the National Volunteers must fail through the impossibility of getting arms They claim to have many letters from America showing that the Irish there are tired of contributing to Home Rule and now that they consider an Irish parliament assured they propose to let those in Ireland settle their internal questions without help Even if American sympathizers should refill the war chest the present government measures to suppress gun running in all ports would checkmate them

TIME BRINGS CHANGES

By ELLA CYGAN.

Good evening' said the pretty girl in an expressionless tone as she descended the stairs and entered the room where the young man awaited her I thought I told you that you weren't to come again unless you were sent for'

So you did' the young man exclaimed with a startled air Now that you mention it I recall something of the sort But I am going to be sensible tonight—no romance nor broken hearts at all—nothing of that stuff I am in a very serious mood I shan't bother you by repeating my sentiments of recent date

Thank you the pretty girl said That is very much better I thought you would get over the idea if you took a little time"

You wrong me' said the young man. I haven't got over it at all However, let us get away from this delicate subject which seems to cause you ennui Let's talk about—well about the two to-one proposition

Two-to-one, the pretty girl repeated Is it anything like the multiplication table?

Not exactly' said her caller 'It's the question as to whether two persons can live as cheaply as one'

The pretty girl frowned I thought, she protested that you just said you weren't going to bother me with foolishness about—

The caller raised his eyebrows I don't see any foolishness in a scientific subject he protested I didn't say what two did I? I might mean a couple of fellows or a girl and her aged aunt It's merely a question to which learned men have devoted thought and study

Then they're scientifically foolish said the pretty girl with spirit because two can't

But lots of people have written to the newspapers to prove that they can' insisted the young man triumphantly pulling from his pockets a handful of printed slips Here's a woman who tells how they did it They rented rooms in their flat to pay the rent and bought their provisions Saturday nights when things were marked down They—

I'm not interested in that she interrupted I don't believe I should like to keep a boarding house

Well here's another case where they raised enough vegetables on the vacant lot next door to supply themselves with a year's potatoes and salad and green stuff and the wife got the most wonderful clothes at bargains and—'

That does not thrill me with excitement either said the pretty girl Marked down clothes always look it And—

The young man sighed I didn't suppose you would care as it is he said I don't especially take to those things myself Only you said the other night that your chief objection to me was my lack of interest in the serious side of life so I took up the most serious side I knew—the financial side In other words the two to one theory I did it to convince you that I really thought deeply I should not expect my wife to make an income for over cover the expenses of two I don't need to do that'

The pretty girl looked faintly interested I thought she murmured when you began that you considered those economical plans splendid You were so enthusiastic as you read them'

That was to convince you of my serious interest he told her I've studied the subject and it can be done Only I wouldn't ask you to do it

You wouldn't? she cried Why not? It seems to me that in two days you can experience an awful change of heart Mr Bings!

I believe I have, sighed the young man

The pretty girl sat bolt upright and her cheeks flamed Well you needn't be so perfectly brutal about saying so she quavered and began searching for her handkerchief

My goodness' said the young man with fervor My change of heart was merely that I saw what a fool I had been in expecting you to consent to marry me! Honest Lillian I'm just as crazy about you as ever! Do—do you mean to say you would marry me?

I think, sniffed the pretty girl smiling a watery smile I think I've had a change of heart, too —Chicago Daily News

NATIONALISTS ARE LOOKING TO AMERICA FOR SUPPORT

Expect Irishmen In This Country To Give Financial Aid In Ulster Trouble

London July 6 With every week of suspense in the Ulster crisis the prospects of a civil war in Ireland become more and more apparent Home Rule parliament established in Dublin The great question which confronts the National Volunteers is how to get the American sympathizers to back their movement with funds for their arms and equipment

Correspondents with the Associated Press at Belfast have written of the situation in the Nationalist and Ulster districts in a new respect by showing the increasing development of the plan to form a provisional government in Ulster with Sir Edward Carson at the head taking charge of affairs by force if a provisional government is set up and the fact that the commercial men of Belfast have voted their influence in Ulster against the proposed Home Rule parliament established in Dublin The great question which confronts the National Volunteers is how to get the American sympathizers to back their movement with funds for their arms and equipment

AUTOMOBILE OWNERS FAIL TO NUMBER CARS PROPERLY

Some Confusion Results—Novel Devices to Keep Police From Seeing Numbers

When you sell your automobile it will be a good idea to take off the number before you deliver over the car to the new owner so that he will take out a new number. Recently an Electra man who had sold a car and had neglected to take off the number was haled into court and given considerable trouble when the new owner violated the speed laws.

Local authorities believe that more than one car is being run here with the same number. A few nights ago Policeman Gilham saw a car burning up the wind on Indiana avenue. He got the number and a complaint was filed. This was at 11 p. m. Mr. Gilham was quite positive about the time for he looked at his watch. The owner of a car bearing the number seen by Mr. Gilham was brought into court this morning and proved conclusively that he had not been down town all evening, and that his car did not tally with the description of the car seen by Mr. Gilham at all. The police are investigating the matter and propose to see to it that every car has a number of its own different from every other car in town.

Since the effort to enforce the speeding ordinance was begun and a motorcycle officer placed on duty some of the young bloods have resorted to various devices to escape arrest. One of these has been the attaching of a string to the number on their car in such a manner that the occupants of the car can pull it up when speeding it up. Another favorite method is to oil the number plate so that it will be covered up with an accumulation of dust.

FEDERATION CRITICISED BY PALESTINE LABOR COUNCIL

Action on Prohibition and Initiative Referendum and Recall is Denounced

By Associated Press

Palestine, Texas, July 6.—The Palestine Trades and Labor Council has adopted the following resolution made public last night:

To Organized Labor of Texas: We a committee appointed by the Palestine Trades and Labor Council to draft a resolution protesting against the action of the seventeenth annual convention of the Texas State Federation of Labor assembled at El Paso June 8 injecting the prohibition question into that organization protest:

That this great body has always stood for salutary laws that are for the betterment and elevation of the toiler but this body is opposed to introducing an issue into it that is sure to cause strife, opposition and produce strife in the ranks of labor.

Prohibition is an issue upon which the rank are divided therefore it is an issue which we have always striven to avoid bringing into the labor convention or meeting, believing that each individual should settle this matter for himself.

We also protest against the manner in which political delegates defeated the initiative or referendum and recall a method used by and advocated by all unions both state and national. We protest against the inconsistency of the delegate politicians detaching this measure and then making the initiative, referendum and recall a preferred measure to be presented by our legislative board to the next legislature. This measure should have received the proper endorsement of all when it was first presented at the convention instead of assassinating it in one instance and endorsing it in another.

We deplore the rash, unwarranted and untimely acts which transpired at our late state convention.

GOOD MOTORCYCLE EVENTS AT LAKE WICHITA SUNDAY

Three Minor Accidents Take Place—Lambert Wins Two Out of Three Races

The crowd was small but the races were splendid in the motorcycle meet at Lake Wichita Sunday. Three events were run off, being close enough to keep the spectators on edge and further thrills were provided by Clem Nolen whose machine took three spills, the last of which broke his machine and forced him out of the race. The first two did little damage.

A fifteen mile, ten mile and five mile race were run and Nolen spilled himself in all three. However he was able to win the first having such a long lead when he upset that the others could not catch him. Each spill took place on the north curve where there is a bit of soft track. The results follow:

Fifteen mile: Nolen first, Lambert second, Totten third.

Ten mile: Lambert first, Bradlock second, Nolen third.

Five mile: Lambert first, Bradlock second, Raulin third.

Lambert who won two firsts and one second has been Nolen's chief opponent both in these races and those held earlier in the summer. Nolen's fall in the third race threw a pedal off his machine and he was unable to continue in the running.

AT THE CHAUTAUQUA THIS WEEK

MAX MAHANY

CAMBRIDGE PLAYERS

THE CHAUTAUQUA PECULIARLY AMERICAN.

An Outgrowth of Free Thought, Free Speech and Freedom

Roosevelt says: "The Chautauqua is the most American of all our institutions."

The Chautauqua idea sprang out of a desire for larger educational privileges and the hunger of the people for the best thought, clean entertainment and most inspiring pleasure that could be afforded by the talent of the country. The platform of a Chautauqua affords a forum for the discussion of the most vital questions pertaining to government, reform and to the social and economic life of the people. This forum is free, unhampered and unchecked. All sides of the question are discussed without fear or hindrance by the masters in their lines. On the platform there will appear the descendant of the Puritans, a typical New Englander, together with the friend of three generations of abolitionists in his veins, and the same day the carpet-bagger from the south, son of a former slave owner, will bring his message, and each will present his views of the great present day problems for consideration, and to be heard with equal pleasure.

The large number of Chautauquas and the great crowds that gather year after year to hear these discussions bring to the people the wide range and that there is a broad minded, generous and sane, earnestly patriotic to hear the various questions discussed from every viewpoint. When the people think for themselves, as they are tended along safe and sane lines, it is further certain, less the force of prejudices and the security of their rights. The Chautauqua, as it is, the greatest possible force will be found in favor of [illegible]

Chautauqua is an institution which has come to stay. It is a great educational force, a great moral force. It pulls people out of the humdrum into the higher, better, fuller, fuller, more [illegible] view of the horizon of their possibilities and opportunities.

The Chautauqua is no mere run for money making. Money is needed and fortune building is its present. It brings to the high-spirited restless intellectual and long up-reaching for mind and soul [illegible] a moment of contact with the world and where he can [illegible] his business, his farm and his [illegible] interest at the same time.

Chautauqua means what it [illegible] was and always will be. It is not in the idea that it is only the dull but the young, virile, intellectual, [illegible] and women are drawn away from the humdrum of hard, severe things into an atmosphere full of [illegible] spring, recreation and uplift. It makes life more worth the living.

CHAUTAUQUA AND THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

What could be more [illegible] than six or eight days spent under the young people [illegible] month upon twenty [illegible] miles of the Chautauqua. [illegible] new glimpses of life, [illegible] this see the [illegible] man and woman either present in the [illegible] wrought out for them [illegible] Poets, humorists, philosophers, statesmen, musicians that have their [illegible] as exhibits with their [illegible] in the great cities, come and go from the Chautauqua platform, giving the best the very cream of their life's work to the town and country, young and old. Young men are inspired by this to greater and better manhood. Young women to a sweeter and higher type of womanhood. The mists and fogs are lifted, if of hard work, men and women for which [illegible] them to live in a new world. There is [illegible] less [illegible] for the [illegible] and higher motives for the [illegible] and [illegible] the privilege and opportunity of living a delightful [illegible] with [illegible] friends in [illegible] and exhilarating and ideal surroundings.

CHAUTAUQUA INSPIRES.

Gives the People a Broader View of Life

The Chautauqua not only shows how, but the desire is in this country and shows it to those that need most to see and hear, but it also gives the best citizens in a local community a chance to show what they can do for their own people and for the young men and women. The local committees that foster Chautauquas are those that foster schools, churches and colleges, institute reforms and stand for the intellectual, moral and material welfare of their towns and surrounding country. The Chautauqua inspires with new ideals, creates a sane and healthy public opinion and plans for a better community. It pulls people out of the humdrum into the higher, better, fuller, more [illegible] view of the horizon of their possibilities and opportunities.

What Chautauqua Means

The word Chautauqua has an interesting history. It is said to be the ancestors of the Senecas, who lived on the margin of this (now Chautauqua) beautiful lake, after a successful hunt they camped upon its borders for the night. A sudden storm rose. The waves became so high that their camp was jeopardized and in the considerable confusion a little child was swept away beyond their reach and lost in the bosom of the lake. Thereafter the lake was known as Chaudaqua (the place where the child was carried away). It now is applied into its present form, Chautauqua.

THE CAMBRIDGE PLAYERS.

J. J. McDERMOTT
National Open Champion 1911 to 1913
"Pipe smoking gives added pleasure to a golfer when the pipe is filled with Tuxedo. Tuxedo provides more keen enjoyment than any other tobacco I know."

ALEX CAMPBELL
Country Club, Brookline, Mass.
"I am always glad to speak a good word for Tuxedo tobacco. Constant use of it only serves to make it better liked. Its fragrant, soothing flavor makes it the choice of many golfers."

ALEX ROSS
National Open Champion 1907 says
"Tuxedo, cool and mild, is essentially the smoke that satisfies. Many of my fellow golfers agree with me in giving preference to Tuxedo."

Tee Up! Smoke Up!

As satisfying as the sounding smack of the perfect drive, is the open-air relish of the perfect smoke—Tuxedo. Both go together, too. When you grab your bag and start for the links, grab up your tin of Tuxedo and take it along.

"Follow through" the snappy afternoon with Tuxedo. Put Tuxedo in your pipe and you will "put" the best. And at "the nineteenth hole" rest up and relax with a good, solid smoke of Tuxedo. That's the advice of good golfers everywhere.

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

It's worth your while to try Tuxedo. Especially if a sensitive tongue prevents pipe smoking.

Tuxedo positively cannot bite—not even if you smoke pipeful after pipeful, as many as you can crowd into a day or a week.

Tuxedo is made of only the finest, choicest, selected leaves of perfectly aged Burley tobacco. It is made by the original "Tuxedo Process" which removes every trace of bite and sting and develops all the wonderful mildness, fragrance and flavor of the Burley Leaf in a way that no other brand of tobacco has ever successfully imitated.

NEWSPAPERS AND THE BIBLE

Magazine Cites Authorities in Defense of Grammar for Which It Was Criticized.

When some of our editorial friends around the country were gunning for us they spoke scornfully because the editor of this erudite weekly said "you are a man who do" instead of "a man who does," we came back at them with quotations from Carlyle Longfellow and Macaulay As some have not been satisfied with these writers we now offer them II Chronicles, 20 7

"Art thou not our God, who didst drive out the inhabitants of this land before thy people Israel, and gavest it to the seed of Abraham thy friend forever?"

Probably most of them will admit that the King James version of the Bible is written in fairly good English The Brooklyn Eagle calls our construction "Damaged Goods in English." It observes that the third person is closer to the pronoun and hence the jar to the ear when the verb comes along in the second person However, it admits that the personal pronoun has in this instance for antecedent a choice of subjects, one in the second and one in the third person It seems that we are free to use our own ear and find out whether it is jarred or not As a matter of fact, it is not a matter of ear so much as of visual imagination that caused us to choose the form that raises the image of the person spoken to instead of the indistinct image of a man in general, and when it comes to ear and visual imagination the Bible, Carlyle, Macaulay and Longfellow can probably stagger along—Harper's Weekly

Burial Party Entirely Forgot the Most Important Part of the Funeral Cortege.

To the northerner, only an enfeebled imagination turns in dismay from the story of the family, who having lost their nearest relative, prepared to bury him with a due accompaniment of lamentations and baked meats. All was prepared; with the certain subdued festivity that marks such occasions in the north The churchyard was some miles away, and it was agreed that the whole family, together with the coffin, were to be conveyed to the "burying" in a large hired 'bus By degrees the 'bus began to "play lead" in the imaginations of all concerned

It usurped the principal place in the coming drama, to the exclusion of the rightful player of the part When the eventful day arrived the family bestowed themselves within its recesses in splendid, if solemn, triumph

The vehicle moved away, and had proceeded a little distance down the road when its progress was checked by the headlong pursuit of the family servant, waving and calling incoherently. Hurrying and gasping she overtook the surprised mourners, and then her errand was revealed in the pithy sentences, "Yo mun turn back' Yo've forgotten th' corpse'"

And so it appeared, they had—London Tit-Bits

French Oyster Beds Threatened.

Portuguese oysters, which, according to zoologists, do not even belong to the properly called species of oysters, but to the gryphaea species, are threatening to invade the French oyster beds, and inasmuch as they are not the edible dish which the Frech oyster makes there is regret at the prospect. The more robust Portuguese oysters some time ago supplanted the native oysters in the region of Arcachon and are likewise attacking the Marennes oysters that are so highly appreciated At first it was thought the danger was limited, as it was believed the southern gryphaea could not become acclimatized on the Brittany coasts. Now, however, it has been shown that the Portuguese oysters can very well live on the Brittany coasts and they are threatening to gradually take the place of the oyster of Caucale that have a much better taste and are more appreciated

Could Not Enforce Uniform.

In 1868 the formation was attempted in London of a league of housewives pledged to engage only servants who would undertake to wear a uniform In the preliminary manifesto it was also proposed to prohibit servants from wearing superfluities, such as flowers, feathers, brooches, buckles or clasps, earrings, lockets neck ribbons and velvets, kid gloves sashes jackets, Garibaldis, trimmings on dresses crinolines or steel of any kind On her Sunday out a servant was to assume "a neat alpaca dress, linen collars and cuffs, black apron, black shawl, straw bonnet bound round with ribbons, thread or cotton gloves, small cotton umbrella to keep off the sun and rain" The costume was to be diversified in cold weather by a Bussey dress and a shepherd's plaid shawl This extraordinary scheme found very few supporters and had to be abandoned

Patrick Henry's Great Speech.

Patrick Henry's immortal speech, in which he used the words "Give me liberty or give me death," was delivered not at Williamsburg, but in old St. John's church at Richmond before the assembly of the second Virginian convention of delegates in March, 1775 The famous speech was not written, and as shorthand reporters were somewhat scarce in those days, we have only snatches of the great oration, which immortalized Henry and set the colonies on fire.

WOMAN IS ACCIDENTALLY SHOT BY SON, MAY DIE

By Associated Press

Houston, Texas, July 6 While Mrs Frank Frish was alive this morning, physicians held out little hope for her recovery She was shot through the body with a revolver by John W Bissonet, her sixteen year old son who promptly called the police Mrs Frish's husband here on the Southern Pacific in a statement made at the hospital fully exonerated her son saying it was an accident
